Long Time NE Georgia DNR Law Enforcement Sergeant Promoted to Captain – Will Lead NW GA Region

SOCIAL CIRCLE, GA – Last week, the Georgia Department of Natural Resources Law Enforcement Division promoted Sergeant Mike Burgamy to the rank of Captain and announced that he will be the new supervisor of Region I, which covers 20 counties in northwest Georgia and includes the City of Atlanta. He steps into the vacancy created when Captain Jeff Galloway retired a few weeks ago. Burgamy's new role Captain will be effective on Tuesday, July 16th.

“With Captain Galloway’s knowledge and experience, he will be an outstanding leader for our northwest Georgia region,” said DNR Law Enforcement Director Colonel Eddie Henderson. “He has a reputation of professionalism and hard work and I am confident that will continue in his new assignment.”

Burgamy began his 25 years as a Georgia DNR Law Enforcement Game Warden in Clarke County in Region III in 1994. He transferred to a new assignment at Lake Lanier in Hall County in Region II and has served there since 1995. He was promoted to Sergeant in 2005, leading one of the busiest work units in the state on one of the busiest lakes in the nation.

Captain Burgamy’s was awarded the State Supervisor of the Year and State Boating Officer of the Year during his career – evidence of his dedication and work ethic as recognized by his peers and the Division Command Staff.

Captain Burgamy resides in Dade County.
