DNR Captain Bob Lynn Graduates from National Conservation Leadership Academy

SOCIAL CIRCLE, GA – The Georgia Department of Natural Resources’ Law Enforcement Division is pleased to announce that Captain Bob Lynn, who leads the Division’s coastal region, graduated last week from the National Conservation Law Enforcement Leadership Academy (NCLELA) at the National Conservation Training Center in Shepherdstown, WV. His diploma and award were presented by fellow classmates Capt. Jason Snellbaker and Lt. Michael Eastman.

“It is vitally important to have Game Wardens who provide effective, efficient and thorough conservation law enforcement. And, to accomplish this, you must have leaders who are willing to seek out educational opportunities that will help them continue to provide solid management and leadership into the future,” said DNR Law Enforcement Division Director Col. Eddie Henderson, who is also the current president of the National Association of Conservation Law Enforcement Chiefs, who oversees the Academy. “I commend Captain Lynn on his commitment to continuing education and I greatly appreciate his contribution to conservation law enforcement and to our Division.”

According to their web site, NCLELA prepares conservation law enforcement executives to successfully carry out the conservation law enforcement mission in a rapidly changing world. The NCLELA provides education on contemporary issues, trends, management and leadership skills and abilities needed by executive level conservation LE leaders in state and federal agencies.

During the training, Lynn engaged in such topics as adaptive leadership, leading change, resource management, personnel management, shaping organizational culture, strategic planning, surviving and succeeding as an executive liability, establishing a leadership legacy, and more.

Capt. Lynn is a 19-year veteran with GA DNR Law Enforcement.
