Located on Georgia's Colonial Coast, this park offers cozy facilities in a beautiful setting. Campsites are surrounded by Spanish moss-draped oaks while cottages overlook the river or marsh. Hikers can explore the nature trails which wind through maritime, pine and bay forests into salt marshes and over archaeological shell middens. Our boat ramp is popular with anglers who often take to the water before sunrise. Visitors may venture to the nearby ruins of the tabby McIntosh Sugar Works mill, built around 1825 and later used as a starch factory during the Civil War. Just down the road is the ferry to famous Cumberland Island National Seashore, known for wild horses and mansion ruins.

Nature Center: Spring, summer, fall or winter, there is always something hoppin'. See our live snakes, turtles and honey bee observation hive. Weekend programs with our Naturalist exploring the natural wonders of the park can teach you to bird, fish or survive in the woods. Learn what you can do to improve wildlife habitat in your own backyard. Located atop the Crooked River Bluff, the park is approximately 500 acres and is home to several unique plant communities. Showcased are the Bay Swamp, Marsh, Longleaf Pine/Palmetto and mixed hardwood environments. These habitats are focal points for the animal communities including the colorful and notorious painted bunting. Walk our trails and see advanced successional stages of forest displaying a wide variety of plants, many of which are rare in Georgia. Shell middens left by Native Americans are prevalent and lead up to the marshes edge overlooking the Crooked River. Come see the local alligators, herons and gopher tortoises that require these special habitats to survive.
